Introduction:

This Certificate Course in Spoken English introduces students to the skills of attaining basics of effective communication in English. It charts through the various needs and requirements of a learner into the domain of English language speaking. The curriculum focuses on practical conversation. We focus on essential vocabulary, grammar structures, pronunciation, intonation and conversational phrases that are necessary for effective communication. Our structured curriculum gradually introduces new concepts, allowing the learners to acquire everyday dialogues, and situational role-plays to ensure that they can confidently interact with others in English.

Objectives: the objectives of this course are as follows:

- To make the students proficient in Spoken English communication in various formal and informal situations.
- Build the basic foundation for English communications skills.
- To develop the learner's overall personality development to face job interviews in a confident manner.

Course Module:

This thirty hours contact course is divided into four units. Each unit focuses on the various aspects of Spoken English communication, imparting the basic theoretical inputs and then followed by rigorous practice sessions. This syllabus is designed for the undergraduate students and each unit is designed keeping in mind the objectives stated above.

The units are as follows:

UNIT I: Introduction to Basic English Listening & Speaking Skills (4 hours)

- Barriers of English Communication

The prospect of giving a presentation fills some people with dread, while others relish the experience. However you feel, presenting your work to an audience is a vital part of professional life for researchers and academics. Presentations are a great way to speak directly to people who are interested in your field of study, to gather ideas to push your projects forward, and to make valuable personal connections.
