60 Years of glorious existence

A group of visionaries in West-Nalbari area took upon the task to establish a higher education institution keeping in mind the increased demand in education in Chamata and its surrounding areas. The establishment of this institute was greatly aided by the contributions of distinguished politicians and educators like Late Pramod Ch. Barman and Late Bishwa Goswami and Late Srikanta Dutta as well as social workers. This educational institution, named as Kamrup College, was founded on July 25, 1966, with a great deal of assistance and support from the local community in Chamata and Belsor. The college initially held classes on the premises of Chamata Higher Secondary School in evening time. The college then relocated to its current campus in 1968. Beginning with 7 students, the college eventually was able to fetch 90 students with the assistance of Nalbari College right after. The number of students grows gradually, and there are currently about 2000. At first, the college ran classes with Late Chandra Talukdar and three other professors but no principal. Later, Late Chandra Kanta Mahanta joined as principal after his retirement as Cotton College's head of the Assamese department. Degree classes were started from 1969 and recognised by UGC in 1971. Additionally, the college received UGC grant-in-aid status in 1975.

At present the college is a provincialised college of the Government of Assam and recognized by University Grants Commission (UGC) and has 12(B) and 2(f) status. The college is affiliated to the Assam Higher Secondary Education Council (AHSEC) at the Higher Secondary level and to the Gauhati University at the undergraduate level. The college has been accredited by National Assessment and Accreditation Council (NAAC) two times; first in 2005, with B+ grade (institutional score 78%); second in 2016, with "A" grade (CGPA 3.04) and third in 2024, with B+ grade (CGPA 2.69). While the college had only Arts Stream in earlier academic sessions, the Government of Assam granted Science Stream in the year 2022, which has been running since. The The Open and Distance Learning (ODL) wing of the college serves as a recognized study center of Krishna Kanta Handique State Open University.
